JANE – Joint Action on Networks of Expertise

In addition to the European Reference Networks, on rare cancers, which already exist for five years now, Europe's Beating Cancer Plan foresees new networks – the networks of Comprehensive Cancer Centres and the Networks of Expertise.

JANE - Joint Action on Networks of Expertise is shaping seven EU Networks of Expertise (NoEs) for cancer care-related issues that require cross-border cooperation and European-level know-how on:

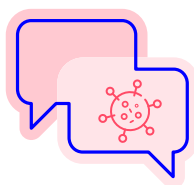

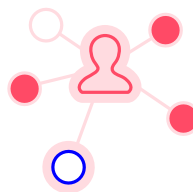

The main goals are to lay the foundations and make the preparatory work needed to launch the networks.

The Networks of Expertise will provide services and tools to European cancer institutions and networks, and five transversal task forces will focus on issues linked to cancer-related networking in the EU today, such as

- integration between healthcare and research;
- integration of health systems, and electronic health records, including through the use of artificial intelligence tools.

JANE partners with other Joint Actions, networks, and forums to enhance European efforts to tackle cancer.

By fostering coordinated relationships within the European oncology community, JANE aims to find solutions that allow patients across the EU to benefit from increased knowledge and expertise and more accessible health services.
